Daily Fashion Hints

YOUTHFUL GOWN
Black satin has many charming creations to its credit this season and this frock, with its trimming of rich Italian lace, its wide hip and side drapery, and, most of all, the swirling grace of its pleated flounce, is the most important still, is flatteringly youthful to the wearer.

Mullen of Uniontown, county superintendent of the Christian Citizenship Department, gave a most interesting talk on the various departments of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Mrs. J. F. Lahr was elected a delegate to the national convention to be held October 5-9 at Erie. Refreshments were served.

Fall Sewing Day.

One of the most important features, especially to the women of Conneltsville and vicinity, of the annual Fall Exposition Week, at the Wright-Motter store, was fall sewing day today. Displayed in the day goods department, of which R. M. Evans is manager, on the main floor were all the most fashionable silks and wool fabrics, trimmings in harmonizing and contrasting colors, for the coming fall and winter. Never was the showing of high class dress fabrics as large and fascinating as this season. Among the influences contributing to fall fashions, the most important is the Chinese, inspired by the French colony of Indo-China, while the new service robes, for day time wear are black, which leads in popularity shades of brown from taupe to navy.

Coal Commission Condemns Practices Of Miners' Union

Individual mine, and nationally—which would include accounting reports by operators as recommended in the commission's anthracite report.

As to the miners' union the commission recommends much closer contact and greater educational work from the district and national officers of the union to the local operators and men. "We believe that the union will need to depend more upon facts and less upon force if it is, in the future, to advance the interests of its members as successfully as it has in the past. The commission regrets that the union has given so little serious consideration to the ways of meeting the fundamental problem of the coal industry—the problem of irregularity of production and employment," says the report. "The commission states that the miners' union is facing a difficult transition period. It has gone through and won the struggle to become powerful. The challenge confronting it now is whether it can use great power in a responsible way to serve social ends," says the report. "The commission does not advocate nationalization of the coal mines as a means of meeting the national strike or other parts of the problem of labor relations, and recommends against compulsory arbitration as a means of preventing a national walk-out. The commission holds there is no way to force a compulsory award which does not involve enforced operation or enforced labor. It believes incorporation of the union would not have the effect of blinding the union to its contracts, and making it responsible, as often predicted for it, 'Continuous investigation,' however, by the federal government is seen. The coal commission suggests that the government study and give publicity to the basic facts upon which working relations depend. It is suggested that this need not be critical principally in the sense of being chiefly concerned with noting cases of bad practice, but rather with making known cases of the opposite sort.

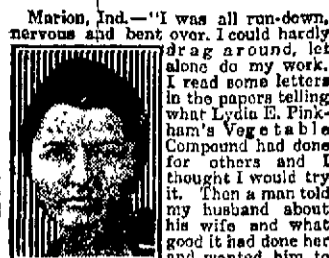

Special compulsory investigation is urged, when the prospect of failure to renew an agreement is imminent, so that the public may have a chance to be heard before labor conflict arises. Specifically, the report recommends an inquiry under the authority of the President.

It is suggested that agreements contain a clause that will provide for automatic renewal of all agreements, except in regard to provisions concerning which either party may have given notice to the other 90 days in advance of the date of termination of the agreement. In case of failure to agree, a report setting forth the factors at issue should be made to the President by each side, the commission suggests, not later than 60 days before the expiration of the agreement. It is recommended when such a report is made, the President immediately inquire into the factors at issue and obtain a report and an award made before the date of expiration of agreement.

"We are confident," says the commission, "that with a continuous orderly process of investigation and report, and if advisable, with the timely injection of a definite representative of the public into the situation in case of disagreement it will become much more difficult for either side to adhere in any capricious way to a contention that will precipitate

WOMAN SO ILL COULD NOT WORK

Gained Strength, Weight and Now Doing Own Work, by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Marion, Ind.—"I was all run-down, nervous and bent over. I could hardly drag around, let alone do my work. I read some letters in the papers telling what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and thought I would try it. Then a man told my husband about his wife and what good it had done her and wanted him to have me try it. I took one bottle and could see what it did for me in a week's time, and when I had taken three bottles I had gained both in strength and weight and was doing my own work. I took it before my last baby was born and it helped me so much. I am glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who suffers from female ailments, for I know by experience what it can do. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, also the Liver Pills, too, and think them fine."—Mrs. Wm. Eldridge, 630 E. Grant Street, Marion, Indiana.

A record of nearly fifty years service should convince you of the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

GULBRANSEN The Registering Piano

Singing is Half the Joy of Owning a Gulbransen

The songs you like best to hear, sung by some loved voice, to your own softly-accented, perfectly-timed accompaniment on a Gulbransen. There's genuine enjoyment for you!

Select your song rolls from the hundreds upon hundreds available, with the words already printed on them. The key they are pitched in doesn't matter. Too high? Too low? Just turn a knob. The Gulbransen instantly transposes.

An ordinary song roll may be played as a splendid and correct accompanying number, on the Gulbransen. The difficult fingering is taken care of by the roll. Through the pedals you register your touch, your time, your expression, following exactly the interpretation given the song by the vocalist.

Four simple Instruction Rolls—exclusive with the Gulbransen—show a method of correct playing. Bear this in mind, too: you can play any make of roll, even electric reproducing rolls, on your Gulbransen.

THE BEST OUGHT TO WIN.

In the free exercise of their choice at the polls today the candidates who are best fitted to perform the duties of the office, to which they aspire will be nominated. It is the duty of every citizen to exercise his right of suffrage and to vote for the best man for the job.

This choice may be difficult to make in some cases where candidates are fairly evenly matched in point of equipment to hold office, but this, no other consideration, should be the sole guide.

In the heat of the campaign some ill feeling may have been engendered by the over-zealous supporters of certain candidates, but this should be forgotten in the desire of voters to promote the best interests of our country, the city and school district.

This is particularly true of Republicans who chief interest in the results of today's balloting should be to select a ticket which the party can take pride in presenting at the November election and so well balanced in all its parts that it will have the undivided support of the party and make a strong appeal to the independent voters of all parties.

UNDERSTANDING THE CONSTITUTION.

Devotion to the Constitution is a true measure of the patriotism of the American people. But devotion cannot come without understanding of the basis principles of this document. With an understanding and a devotion there would be less seeking after the millennium which is promised by the proponents of false political and economic theories.

That is the view Secretary of Labor James J. Davis takes of the situation when recommending the observation of "Constitution Week," when saying:

"If the seven millions of Americans who have not yet become American citizens could get a clear understanding of the meaning of the Constitution we would not have the alien problem. 'In true reverence for the fundamental principles of the Constitution of the United States lies the real spirit of America. In these days of wild political theories and vague economic seekings after the millennium we cannot hold too closely to the great truths which the forefathers set forth when they founded here the first great experiment in representative government. These truths are as solid and stable today as they were when the Constitutional Convention wrote them into that great document which has guided the destinies of the nation for the last 135 years. They were the governmental axioms, which human experience has proved through centuries, and they were adapted to the needs of the American people with the utmost care and judgment. 'Not many weeks ago, I stood at Runnymede in England, where the rebellious barons wrested from King John that first great charter of liberty, the Magna Charta. Some of those barons came from my old home in Wales. They carried to their people the message of the rights of the individual. All that was best in the Magna Charta, our forefathers studied and culled, and adapted it where it was fitted to our use in the Constitution. Thus all of history was scanned for the best that seasoned minds could find of governmental practice. The result was undoubtedly the most perfect written constitution the world has ever known. 'Our patriotism in America' may well be measured by our devotion to the Constitution. Under it we have built up a nation based upon the principle of fraternity, or consideration for our fellow citizens. In this we stand alone in a world where many governments have bred hate and envy and jealousy and war. 'Many of the difficulties and problems which confront America today would disappear if we all knew and understood the fundamental principles of the Constitution. We would be less liable to run after false political and economic gods. If we based our faith on the truths of the Constitution. The seed of the foe of all governments would fall on rocky ground if every American could reason from the basic truths of that great instrument.'

The world generally will view with almost equal interest, but with less sympathy, the outcome of the proposed Hindenburg drive against the tax dodgers, food hoarders and profiteers of Germany than the drive toward Paris in 1918. It is hoped the plan of campaign will be so successful that it will prove worthy of adoption elsewhere.

Presuming that the candidates will all cast ballots today it can be expected that a very fair sized vote will be polled.

Non-Voting Women.

Wilkes-Barre Record.

It appears from statements made by the registrars in cities throughout the State that there is no noticeable increase in the number of women registering this year over last year. It is estimated that in Philadelphia alone there are 200,000 women qualified to vote who have not yet exercised their franchise rights. Probably about the same proportion exists in other communities.

Women who remain away from the polls must be either too indifferent or incapable of comprehending the issues in an election, or afraid that if they vote they will have to pay taxes. There should be no hesitation.

The women who are simply indifferent—well, there is nothing to be said about her but that she deserves everything that may come in the way of bad government.

The women's organizations are doing a good work in stirring up interest in voting. But they have much uphill work, judging by the reports that come in from various parts of the State. By this time there should be a larger increase in the number of women voters.

THE INEVITABLE.

Great has no boundaries or dividing lines. It trends the world according to God's will. And, given no thought to any man's wishes, God leads the dream he struggles to fulfill.

It is the common visitor to all. It comes unbidden to the great and low. We know some day upon us it will fall. But when the hour shall be we cannot know.

We may not plead: "Oh Lord, we need his smile." He may not plead: "This labor have I planned—Let me continue for a little while." God will, and all must bow to God's command.

We dream our dreams and plan our weeks and days. We send our hopes of earthly joys afar. We think we must press on for gold or power. Only to learn how trivial these are.

The wheels slip—There is crepe upon the door—What seemed important has been thrust aside—How strange it seems some men toll as before! What matters trade when one you loved has died?

Faith teaches us that we must be prepared. Be ready with our courage for the worst. From the sharp hurt of sorrow none is spared. And when it comes, God knows that hour is best.

OFFICERS MAKE CLEAN-UP

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, Sept. 18.—The surviving members of Company B, 28th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, held their annual reunion yesterday on the anniversary of the battle of Antietam, the battle where Company B lost many of its men. The reunion was held at the Main street home of Mrs. Elizabeth McGregor. The veterans who were present were Samuel L. Peterson of Ligonier, William Wright of Southwest, Charles C. Swartz of Mount Pleasant, Isalah Myers of Mount Pleasant, R. F. D. Franklin of Mount Pleasant and Nicholas Long of New Stanton. The officer came on to Mount Pleasant and took Millard McCulley, assistant county detective, to the scene of the accident. McCulley made information against Skiles and then took him to jail in Greensburg.

Smithfield Man Held.

Renewed Testimony

No one in Connelville who suffers backache, headaches, or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this Connelville woman's twice-told story. It is confirmed testimony that no Connelville resident can doubt.

Ask your neighbor:
Mrs. W. B. Dowers, 134 N. 3rd St., Connelville, says: "An attack of indigestion put my kidneys in a weak condition. They became disordered and acted too frequently. My back ached constantly and I suffered with headaches and dizzy spells. Black specks blurred my sight and I was weak and run down. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the Connelville Drug Company and they greatly benefited me." (Statement given August 9, 1919.)

On December 9, 1922 Mrs. Bowers said: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of an attack of kidney disorder and distressing pains in my back. I always keep them on hand and I gladly endorse all I said in 1919."

This Man Greatly Helped

Ailments That Cause
Suffering Disappear
On Taking Drecto.

Mr. John Lynch, 131 Carnegie Ave., Connelville, Pa., says:

"Somebody said 'If you don't succeed try and try again.' Well I have tried and tried again to find a medicine that would relieve me of my trouble but without success.

"I couldn't eat without being thrown into a paroxysm of pain. Indigestion would grip my stomach, double me up with cramps. I would gasp for breath. I grew nervous. My kidneys bothered me so that I couldn't sleep. Gastritis bloated my stomach, made it sore and made me hunch.

"I always felt tired. I hated to do the slightest kind of work. Second week when I walked I just dragged one foot after the other. I had pains all over. Sometimes in my back. Sometimes my head would ache so bad that I couldn't see. And nothing helped me, brought me any relief. That is nothing until I met up with Drecto.

"This medicine filled the bill. It quickly put me in good shape, my stomach and kidneys in working order. All signs of pain I have forgotten. They have disappeared. I owe everything to this great remedy, Drecto. I hope that men and women suffering as I did will make use of its marvelous health relieving powers."

Drecto is being specially introduced by Connelville Drug Company and sold by druggists everywhere. Also for sale by Hoffman's Drug Store in Scotland.—Advertisement.

Pinchot Soon to Make Known Plans As to Presidency

By United Press.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 18.—That Governor Pinchot will make known what plans he has for the Presidential nomination in 1924 when he returns from his home at Millford next week was confidently predicted here today.

The belief was expressed that Senators Pepper and Reed had promulgated by their statement declining to commit their support to President Coolidge in view of his possible candidacy.

There has been no official statement of the governor's attitude toward the Presidency but it is known that he has been turning over in his mind lately the potential influence he will have at the next Republican convention.

Whether Pennsylvania will send an uncommitted delegation or a delegation pledged to the governor to the convention was agitating politicians here in view of the Reed-Pepper statement. Senator Pepper, an national committeeman, will have some influence in this connection. He is believed to favor an uncommitted delegation.

Governor Pinchot tomorrow will be host to the operators and miners at a dinner in their honor at Millford where the formal settlement of the hard coal strike will be celebrated. The governor was expected to promulgate an official announcement that operations are resumed following this meeting.

FAYETTE FARMERS USE FIFTH OF LIME ACTUALLY NEEDED

The best kind of lime to use for fall sowing of wheat is the question before the Fayette county farmers. Recently wheat has been harvested from plots on which were tested three forms of lime, lime marl, hydrated lime and raw ground limestone on a York county farm which tests were under the supervision of the agronomy specialists of State College.

Three plots were used for the lime marl to give it an excellent chance to give results since it is a very popular form of lime in that county. The results show a yield on the lime marl plot of 81 bushels per acre and the cost of application was $5 per acre. The hydrated lime yielded 31.1 bushels per acre at an expenditure of $6 per acre while 1,000 pounds of ground limestone gave 30.3 bushel yield and cost $3 per acre. All three forms of lime are recognized as being a desirable source of material for neutralizing acidity. However, the cost should be a deciding factor. In the demonstration the ground limestone proved conclusively to be the most economical. The lime tests of the plots will be the growth and stand of clover on the plots next year.

There are in Pennsylvania over nine million acres of farming land which are acid and should be limed. However, small applications applied once or twice each rotation have been found more economical than heavy applications at longer intervals. The farmers of Fayette county use around one-fifth of the lime actually needed and could be used at a profit. Pasture lands as well as the tillable soils become depleted and could be rejuvenated with a top dressing of lime. Pastures in Bradford county produced 462 pounds per acre in three years when manure was used alone and yielded 6,932 pounds annually when manure was used with lime. Many alfalfa failures are due to the lack of lime and since soil tests to determine the amount of lime needed for assurance of a good stand can be determined at the Farm Bureau office there is no excuse for planting crops in soils depleted in lime and which only mean failure after days of labor in planting any crop.

The Paramount

"McGUIRE OF THE MOUNTED" — The leading attraction today at this theatre presents William Desmond in the leading role. It is a story filled with intense human interest and dramatic action. A pretty love theme between McGuire and Juneau, the little daughter of a French-Canadian trapper, is woven into the plot. Bob McGuire, of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, is trailing a bunch of opium smugglers. He suspects Big Bill Lusk, gambling house proprietor, Lusk to be his hands down McGuire and marries him off to Katie, a dance hall girl and former wife of Big Bill. McGuire is heart broken as he is in love with Juneau, a little French Canadian girl, but he decides to play square with Katie. This attitude on his part complicates the situation as Katie proceeds to fall madly in love with Bob Lusk. McGuire's superior when the two officers quarrelled over a woman. Suspicion points to Bob but just when things seem blackest for him the despised dance hall girl proves her inherent worth by exposing the plot even though it meant her life.

Wednesday and Thursday, Hoot Gibson will be seen in "Shootin' for Love."

WITHIN THE LAW — The first National picture playing today and tomorrow at this theatre presents Norma Talmadge celebrated actress in the role of Mary Turner. This is a great American play which gives Miss Talmadge opportunity for the first time to portray a woman scorned with all the fire of a vengeance that results in passionate love. Lamented by her inability to gain respectable employment, Mary Turner joins a gang of blackmailers with the proviso that they work only within the law. And obtaining mammoth heart balm from wealthy and injudicious men she found to be the safest and most lucrative method. The complications grow when Dick Glider son of Mary's hated former employer is picked as a victim, following which a most extraordinary and dramatic romance develops. Mary Turner is the stellar part made famous by Jane Crawford on the stage in Bayard Veiller's play. It is said to give Miss Talmadge the rarest opportunity she is not to reveal her extraordinary emotional powers. Jack Mulhall and Lew Cody have the principal male roles. Eileen Percy portrays Angie Lynch, the blackmailer who induces Mary to join the band. Prominent parts are also played by DeWitt Jennings, Lincoln Plummer, Joseph Kilgour, Helen LAWFUL LARCENY — A Paramount picture starring Nita Naldi, Conrad Nagel, Lew Cody and Hope Hampton, well known film artists, provides splendid entertainment to day and tomorrow at this theatre. The story is most colorful. Hope Hampton has the role of Marion Dorey, a young wife who frequently is a gambling house of Vice in the picture. In quest of an I. O. U. given by her husband to the woman of her husband's friend, Marion contacts the aid of Guy Jarlow, Vikan's right hand man and the pale role of the wife. Marion is following her husband's I. O. U. when she follows the girl to her home with two detectives but upon arriving there, Marion's act is legal and thus no prosecution. Marion explains matters to her husband and with the entrance of the junior member of the family, the tale happily fits the future. Miss Naldi is a modern with pure Egyptian flavor and she wears gown that will inevitably create a sensation when ever the picture is shown. Modern adaptations of this particular Egyptian period were made for Miss Naldi by leading designers of New York with the result that her gowns are said to be the most elegant in Egyptian mode which according to the latest magazine is to be the dominating note in the fashions of this and subsequent seasons for years to come.

Plain Suit to Be Favored for Fall

Tailored Clothes Are With Lines and Trimness to Please All.

Those who are inclined to study smartness in their clothes favor tailored suits for early fall, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. After so many bonneting and plaitings, kimono sleeves, bloused backs and tie waists, the tailored lines with their trim perfection come as a great relief. There are certain women—and their number is by no means small—who look better in a strictly tailored suit than in any other sort of attire. They take on an air of importance in clothes like these, at the same time losing none of their femininity and beauty, and they are dressed correctly for almost any hour of the day.

A really well-fitting suit is not an easy thing to achieve, for one cannot go into a department store, try on a suit and walk out with what is called a perfectly fitting garment. Tailored suits do not grow that way. They must be fitted and conformed and prayed over before they assume the shape that is right. But once having achieved this perfection, they hold their lines through an eternity of months, not to say years. They can be subjected to as many pressings as a man's suit usually knows, and each time they emerge from the cleaning and pressing process something seems to have been added to their appearance, rather than subtracted.

Some tailors are wizards. They can shape the lines of a simple suit so that they make the largest figure look slim and those out of proportion seem to snap right into harmony under the magic touch of their fingers. No woman need fear the wearing of a tailored suit so long as she makes up her mind to have hers right to begin with.

Each distinct in itself. There are several styles and types of the new tailored suits, but each one is distinct in itself and the lines of one must not be mixed with those of another if the style and smartness are to be preserved. There is the short box coat, for instance. All of its lines are so straight that they could be measured with a ruler. The straight collar and the clipped cuffs with tightly-fitting sleeves, are necessary. Then there is the single-breasted line to complete the arrangement. Everything without exception is straight and uncompromising in cut and making breezy seam is smartly tailored without having any of that stiff look which once upon a time characterized suits that were tailor-made.

All skirts for suits are short. They are a good deal shorter than they have been, for women have found that the shorter skirts were necessary to their comfort and have demanded them back again with so much persistency that they are upon us. The taller women can wear them from ten to eleven inches from the ground and the shorter ones have theirs as short, sometimes, as seven inches.

The three-quarter coat is seen among these tailored suits, but it is usually a part of the tweed costume or those made of thick and heavy "somerset." In this case the sleeves are made with a little more width and the coat has a bit more fullness as it reaches to its three-quarter line, the collars, too, have a little more attitude in the manner of their shaping and are likely to reach high about the neck.

Dresses Are Very Straight. Those are tailored dresses made of serge and again of the more pliable housewifery. They are straight in the extreme, but they are that "tailored look" and line until it is impossible to tell at first glance whether they are coats or suits or just plain dresses. They are almost devoid of trimming, with only bound and braided edges to distinguish them from the more severely tailored suits.

There is one suit which is fitted in at the waistline, though over so slightly. It has an individual air and when one is gifted with a good figure and classic lines there is nothing that can set off its beauty to better advantage than this model of a suit. It is made of black tulle or dark blue tulle or sometimes of tan or gray in these same fabrics. It is often bound with braid to carry out the formality of its design and great pains have been taken to arrange its fastenings in the way of small buttons.

The skirts of all these suits are plain, else they would not be tailored. No plaits are permitted, and the fitting of the skirt is so slim as to be almost tight. It is a continuation of the line of the coat and nothing more. Sometimes it has two pockets in the front but these are inconspicuously inserted, mere slits with tailored edges.

When it comes to the wearing of a suit, there are accessories to be considered. Unless they are right the suit itself amounts to nothing. And it is a fact that the extra fixings one wears with suits differ materially from those worn with other sorts of clothes. They also take on that tailored air, even though they cannot be called the line word in tailoring. They drop, as it were, all extra loops and dangles, and remain plain after the manner of the suit. They must harmonize or they will throw the whole scheme out of key and the result will be an unhappy one on account of the jarring note or two. For the suits of this season the bonnet of the accessories has changed somewhat. What used to be considered smart for wear with suit, is now passe.

Plain Hats Have the Call. Hats are plain. Many of them have no trimming, merely arrangements of lines that go to make up the shape. The clever designer lets it go at that, having spent all of her energy and her artistic skill upon the creation of that one thing—its shape and color.

If it's a Paramount Picture it's the best show in town

The poke bonnet is a favorite for suits. It has little or no trimming, but sometimes its brim is made of brocade or embroidery and again its crown is so bodiced, but the pattern is so much of an all-over affair that it can hardly be called trimming. It is a fabric in itself and part of the hat's construction.

Hats are good, especially of the all-over embroidered variety. Then there is the cloche, which is just as smart today as it was at the beginning of the summer season. It is dark in tone, usually, and its trimming is likely to be of the same color in ribbon or some flat sort of feather arrangement. The brim often turns down all the way around the face, but sometimes it turns back just a wee bit over the face and again at the back, giving a bow effect, much more becoming to certain faces than the more severe line.

Gloves are another important matter. The gauntlets are good, and the mousquetaire even better. The latter are short and roll over the fitted sleeves of the coat in a graceful and interesting fashion.

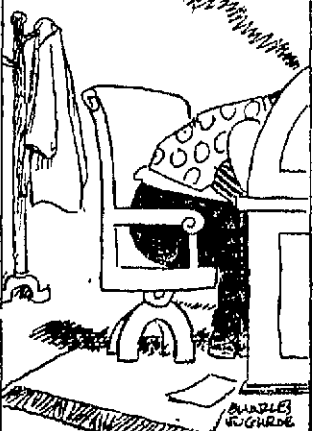

Shoes and stockings are important. There are pointed and graceful slippers meant to be worn with the sort of tailored suit which has just been described and they are even more in appearance. The stockings are light, worn either with shoes to match or with black pumps.

The kerchief is an important part of all clothes just now, whether it be one that is extremely large and ample or one of those little play handkerchief affairs that are meant to stick into the pocket of your suit to give that touch of bright color so much to be desired when the modern styles are considered as a whole.

Workers Will Be Ready For Opening Game Saturday; To Play Youngwood High Team

Captain Lerew Is Shaping Squad Up; Ban Signals and Serlinnage.

TORNADOES REPORTING

With the opening game of the Connelville High School football season coming on Saturday the locals have already begun to show a semblance of form and by the week-end will be working with considerable smoothness.

Fans who went to the field yesterday were both surprised and pleased, according to their remarks. One must say he never expected to find such a husky bunch of youths this year and mentioned that the boys were showing the right spirit by fighting for positions. Competition is keen as no one man seems positively assured of his berth.

Yesterday the second-stringers were "showing the way" to some of the heavier lads and as beef is not always what counts it looks as though Coach Lerew may see his way clear to make a few changes by the week-end.

Captain Lerew, at center, has a heavy burden this year. George has the goods, as he demonstrated last season, and he will have an opportunity this fall to show at his best. A crowd guard is located on either side of him and for a time at least the skipper will have to bear almost double burden.

Youngwood opens the season Saturday. A big crowd will be out to look over the boys. The team has new uniforms and will present a fine appearance on the field in their solid orange jerseys.

Of Interest to Fans.

The West Side Tigers have organized a football team for this season. The organization took effect Sunday. It will be the fourth year for the Tigers. The club would like to arrange games with teams in the 18-17 year old class. Teams desiring to play the "Tigers" write "Bill" Fagan, 415 West Crawford Avenue, Connelville.

The Pittsburgh Pirates lost to Boston yesterday, 6-1. At the same time the New York Giants won over Chicago, 11-6. Kelly of New York drove out home runs in the third, fourth and fifth innings. He also got a double and a single.

About 20 candidates for the DEB's Tornadoes reported for practice yesterday. The men are reporting to Captain "Doc" Juddmore for the present. "Alley" McCormick and Frank Ruhl, players on the Connelville High School team last year, were noted among the candidates.

"Gators" Rout Bathers From Delaware River

Delaware, N. J.—Campers along the banks of the Delaware river near here are going without their morning dips these days. There are five excellent reasons provided by one large and toothful mother, alligator and four agile alligators, almost equally toothful and fully as annoying to find swimming around one's pet bathing bench.

There were six of the original alligator family, which arrived unexpectedly. Harry Boardman, a local ferryman, assassinated the father of the family with no bar. But, although the paternal skin is nailed to a board outside Boardman's shack, the recurring appearance of the widow and fatherless offspring have effectively discouraged aquatic sports.

How to tell for sure—what oil your car needs

No. 3 in the series

Perhaps you own a Buick

If you don't own a Buick, cut this out and hand it to a friend who does

Your Buick engine, because of its large reserve horsepower and efficient cooling system, operates at comparatively low temperatures.

With Buick valve-in-head construction the cooling area of the combustion chamber is relatively small. This, together with compression pressure of 75 lbs. makes this engine sensitive to any appreciable carbon deposits, particularly in view of the present dry fuel. Where excessive carbon deposits exist, "pinging" or knocking results. To minimize carbon deposits under these conditions, your engine requires a well refined, clean burning oil which will be thoroughly distributed by the lubricating system.

For all Buick models (except 1923) use Gargoyle Mobiloil Arctic both summer and winter.

The 1923 Buick engine differs from previous models, in so far as lubrication is concerned. The splash weights are covered, leaving a slot through which the splash dipper passes to project the lubricant. This baffled splash trough design appreciably reduces the quantity of oil distributed so that the lubricating oil will not splash to the cylinders in excess quantities or reach the combustion chambers too freely.

The two center crankshaft bearings are supplied with oil under pressure.

These changes in the 1923 Buick construction permit the use in summer of an oil heavier in body and richer in character than heretofore without the possibility of objectionable carbon accumulations.

Hence, for the 1923 Buick, Gargoyle Mobiloil "A" in summer and Gargoyle Mobiloil Arctic in winter will insure correct lubrication.

JUNGLE HIDES ANCIENT CITY

Place in Ceylon Was Founded 437 B. C., and Covered Area of Sixteen Square Miles.

Boston.—Of the buried cities of Ceylon, the most fully excavated to date is Anuradhapura. Not that excavation can be said to be at all complete, but at the present stage startling facts are revealed.

Here, says a writer in the Christian Science Monitor, was an ancient city, a contemporary of Rome, which for extent quite dwarfs it. "Road-centering Route" was built on seven small hills—Anuradhapura's splendid structures cover an area of at least sixteen miles square. At least, for neither the out city walls nor its exact boundaries have as yet been determined. Decipherable "Aśoka" characters place its founding as a royal city at 437 B. C.; its desertion as such did not take place until late in the Ninth century.

Twelve hundred years of pulsance, of luxury, of splendid architecture—and yet the western world knows of it nothing. Attacked by the jungle the moment the nightfires of civilization flickered out, like the vast ruins of Aztec culture in Yucatan, its place in legend, its wonders as mythical as Num, Troy, or Pompeii Utica.

The Valley Today.
Today one walks through the valley of Anuradhapura as though through a One old English wood. Pastured cattle keep a lawnlike floor beneath stalwart live oaks, banyans, teak, and ficus trees. Monkeys, parrots and endless sorts of smaller feathered jewels pass forever above you. Clanging rattan, air-fans, orchids, draping mosses far aloft yield only a dusky half-light along the pathways.

Throughout the 226 square miles of this park-like domain, now interspersed with marble bathing pools, now overtopped by soaring domes and stupas, and also the undiminished thousands of square stone columns, unique to that far-off period of Ceylon. These monoliths of every girth and height are everywhere here. Springing from wide marble platforms, or embedded in the soil, once supporting canopies or upper floors, they present a feature the most casual visitor cannot fail to find impressive. And remember, they are hand-hewn, man-handled monoliths; though much smaller than those used by the Egyptians. The "Brazen Palace" (erected about 160 B. C.) had 1,000 pillars supporting the second story.

The structures as made appear to have been mainly for two uses—as storehouses and their adjuncts, and as products of royalty. Indeed, it seems as if the wide range of Anuradhapura had been given over to the highly active, recently introduced Buddhism as a sort of spiritual exposition ground, a national Acropolis and Chaulauqua together, in the glory and learning of which royalty, semi-deified, had a natural place.

Huge Dagobas.
The royal establishment had many elaborate bathing "tanks" (in Sanskrit word) roundabout, and there were many others of a ritual nature scattered throughout the city. These uncanopied, at times, some of them yet holding water, have been excavated by scores, their ancient splendor easily discernible. Another of the particular features of this vanished civilization, of this buried metropolis, is a half dozen sky-scraping dagobas. Four are of tremendous size, the Abhayagiri having a height of probably 280 feet and a base diameter of 232 feet. A dagoba is a memorial structure (solid usually, occasionally also a reliquary) inspired, somewhere by Buddhism; is generally conical, and is found of a characteristic type in such country—becoming the well-known pagoda in China and Japan.

The Abhayagiri dagoba, around which spreads a pavement eight acres in area, has been calculated by an authority as requiring bricks sufficient to have built a wall ten feet high from London to Edinburgh.

To Try to Scale Roof of Continent in Plane

Anchorage, Alaska.—Mount McKinley, the highest elevation on the North American continent, will be scaled for the first time soon, if the attempt of Carl E. Ekfelson, former army aviator, and C. J. Locke, Anchorage newspaper man, to land in an airplane on the frozen plateau at its summit proves successful.

The start of the trip will be made at McKinley station, at the entrance to the park, where there is a natural landing field. Other landing places are also being located in various sections of the park, where additional fuel is being stored.

Entering the park, they will spiral to an altitude of perhaps 25,000 feet, venturing over the plateau, several miles square at the summit, and, if the ice permits, actually make a landing on the "roof-of-the-continent," 20,000 feet above the sea.

Certainly Not!

24-Year-Old Youth Is Yankees' Main Hope Of Winning World's Series

WAITE HOYT, HIS WIFE AND THEIR 5-WEEKS-OLD SON, HARRY.

NEW YORK.—When the Yankees meet the Giants in the world's series their pitching house will center in a 24-year-old youngster barely out of high school, Waite Hoyt, of Brooklyn. Hoyt was an Erasmus High school boy just a few years ago. He is married and the father of a 5-week-old son, Harry. Hoyt tried out for the Giants when he was 17, his father signing the contract, but the league disallowed and Hoyt was sent to M. Carmel. He is the youngest ball player of stellar dimensions in pennant fight.

"Oh, hello, Bream," said Billie.
"Hello," said Sam.
"Hello," said Bream Mortimer.
"Here you are!"
There was a pause.
"I thought you might be here," said Bream.
"Yes, here we are," said Billie.
"Yes, we're here," said Sam.
There was another pause.
"Mind if I join you?" said Bream.
"No," said Sam.
"No," said Billie again. "No . . . that is to say . . . oh no, not at all."

There was a third pause.
"On second thoughts," said Bream, "I believe I'll take a stroll on the promenade deck, if you don't mind."
They said they didn't mind. Bream Mortimer, having bumped his head twice against overhanging steel ropes, melted away.
"Who is that fellow?" demanded Sam wrathfully.
"He's the son of father's best friend."

Sam started. Somehow this girl had always been so individual to him that he had never thought of her having a father.
"We have known each other all our lives," continued Billie. "Father thinks a tremendous lot of Bream. I suppose it was because Bream was sailing by her that father insisted on my coming over on this boat. I'm in disgrace, you know. I was cabled for and had to sail at a few days' notice."

"Oh, hello!" said Billie, looking at him as he stood on the old spot in the same familiar attitude with rather less affection than the son of her father's best friend might have expected. "I thought you said you were going down to the promenade deck."
"I did go down to the promenade deck. And I'd hardly got there when a fellow who's getting up the ship's concert tomorrow night noddled me to do a couple of songs. He wanted to know if I knew anyone else who would help. I came up to ask you," he said to Sam. "If you would do something."

"No," said Sam. "I won't."
"He's got a man who's going to lecture on deep-sea fish and a couple of women who both want to sing 'The Rosary,' but he's still an act or two short. Sure you won't rally round?"

"Quite sure."

"Oh, all right," Bream Mortimer hovered wistfully above them. "It's a great morning, isn't it?"

"Yes," said Sam.
"Oh Bream!" said Billie.
"Hello?"

"Do be a pet and go and talk to Jane Hubbard. I'm sure she must be feeling lonely. I left her all by herself down on the next deck."

A look of alarm spread itself over Bream's face.

"Jane Hubbard! Oh, say, have a heart!"

"She's a very nice girl."

"She's so darned dramatic. She looks at you as if you were a giraffe or something and she would like to take a pot at you with a rifle."

"Nonsense! Run along. Get her to tell you some of her big-game hunting experiences. They are most interesting."

Bream drifted sadly away.

"I don't blame Miss Hubbard," said Sam.

"What do you mean?"

"Looking at him as if she wanted to pot at him with a rifle. I should like to do it myself. What were you saying when he came up?"

"Oh, don't let's talk about me. Read me some Tennyson."

Sam opened the book very willingly. Informal Bream Mortimer had absolutely shot to pieces the spell which had begun to fall on them at the beginning of their conversation. Only by reading poetry, it seemed to him, could it be recovered. And when he saw the passage at which the volume had opened he realized that his luck was in. Good old Tennyson! He was in. Good old Tennyson! He was in.

He cleared his throat.

"Oh let the solid ground
Not fall beneath my feet
Before my life has found
What some have found so sweet!"

Then let come what come may,
What matter if I go mad,
I shall have had my day
At the sweet heavens endure.

Not close and dark above me
Before I am quite quite sure
That there is one to love me . . .

This was absolutely topping. It was like diving off a springboard. He could see the girl sitting with a soft smile on her face, her eyes big and dreamy, gazing out over the sunlit sea. He laid down the book and took her hand.

"There is something," he began in a low voice, "which I have been trying to say ever since we met, something which I think you must have read in my eyes."

Her head was bent. She did not withdraw her hand.

"Until this voyage began," he went on, "I did not know what life meant. And then I saw you! It was like the gate of heaven opening. You're the dearest girl I ever met and you can bet I'll never forget."

He stopped. "I'm not trying to make it rhyme," he said apologetically. "Billie, don't think me silly . . . I mean . . . if you had the merest notion, dearest . . . I don't know what's the matter with me . . ."

"Darling," she said, "I've a confession to make."

Billie, darling, you are the only girl in the world! I have been looking for you for years and years and I have found you at last, my soul-mate. Surely this does not come as a surprise to you? That is, I mean, you must have seen that I've been keen . . .

More Grip on the Road! Buick Four-wheel Brakes

Buick four-wheel brakes give all 1924 Buick cars twice the amount of grip on the road, thereby doubling their braking efficiency. It is the friction or grip of the tire on the road surface that brakes or slows down the car.

Buick four-wheel brakes not only provide a greater power to stop in case of emergency but, because of this four-wheel road grip, reduce skidding dangers to a minimum.

In turning, Buick four-wheel brake construction automatically releases whichever is the outside or guiding front wheel so it is instantly responsive to the steering mechanism.

Buick four-wheel brake construction distributes braking friction over four drums and four wheels. This reduces wear on brake linings and tires, thereby assuring their longer life and greater efficiency with fewer adjustments.

Buick four-wheel brakes (on all models) together with countless other distinctive features of the 1924 cars further establish Buick as the Standard of Comparison.

EUROPE'S ARMIES TOTAL 3,917,949

2,000,000 Fewer Men Under Arms Than in 1913.

RUSSIA LEADS WITH 928,000

Europe today is less of an armed camp by nearly 2,000,000 men than it was in 1913, the year before the World War, says the New York Times. In that year, according to the most reliable information, there were 4,917,949 men under arms in the active armies of Europe. These armies included reserves on active duty, but the total also of the European forces given for 1913 does not include organized reserves not on duty, neither does it take into consideration the unorganized reserves that in time of emergency enter into the military man power of the nations of Europe.

The total number of men in the active armies of Europe on December 31, 1922, according to statistics of reliable reports received in Washington, was 3,917,949 men. This total is worked out on the same basis of comparison as that for 1913. It takes into consideration the forces known to be in the active armies and in order to serve only where they are on active duty. Comparison of these totals indicates that the active armies of Europe today number 1,751,251 fewer in a than these same armies totaled in 1913.

Cost Has Quadrupled. There is a popular impression that the armies of Europe are larger today than they were in the year preceding the outbreak of the war. It has even been charged that there are 2,000,000 more men under arms in Europe than was the case in 1913. There is nothing to sustain this assumption, says the experts in Washington whose business it is to have definite knowledge of the subject.

Another outstanding fact in the European military situation of today is that the cost of maintaining armies has gone up tremendously. The armies of 1922, although generally smaller than those of 1913, cost considerably more than those of the pre-war year, even in the United States. Official figures covering the military expenditures of the United States and certain other countries show that the 1922 expenditures are considerably in excess of those of 1913. The increase is largest in the Italian army, which now costs more than at any time what it did ten years ago, despite the fact that its personnel is 50,000 less than in 1913.

Armies Come High. The British and French armies are costing about four times as much as they did a year ago. The military expenditures of Great Britain in 1913 amounted to $28,220,000, as compared with $115,870,000 in 1922, so that the ratio of 1922 expenditures to those of 1913 was 4.10 for Great Britain. The figures given for the British army include, so far as 1922 is concerned, only one-half of the expenditures for the British air service, which is not under regular army control.

Officially checked figures show that the military expenditures of France in 1913 aggregated $68,224,876 francs, as compared with $190,000,000 francs in 1922. In other words, the French army cost 4.28 more in 1922 than it did in 1913, although the personnel was only 45,000 larger on December 31 last than in the year preceding the war.

Similarly, comparing the cost of the Italian army in its own coin of the realm, the government's military expenditures in 1913 aggregated 424,350,069 lire, while in 1922 it had risen to 2,067,048,000. Consequently, the Italian people are spending 6.14 times as much on their army as they did ten years ago, even though the personnel of their active force is 70,000 smaller.

Bolshevik Army Totals 928,000. The largest army in Europe in 1913 was that of Russia, when there were 1,500,000 soldiers on active duty. The flower of the Russian forces was blighted by the World War. Russia today, under Bolshevik domination, is credited with an active army of 928,000 men, well trained and well armed. Some persons may think that the Bolshevik army of nearly a million is only a paper force. But this is far from the truth.

Leon Trotsky, the Russian minister of war, declared in his official report to December, 1922, that the strength of the Bolshevik army was 5,000,000 men. Experts do not doubt that such a force existed, although it was not so well armed or trained as the present smaller force. By the end of 1921 it had been reduced to 1,500,000 men, and a year later to 928,000. Authentic information says that the army is being reduced still further, although every effort is expended to make it more efficient.

France Has More Troops. It has been the tradition in Germany, Austria, Russia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Italy that has brought down the size of the armies of Europe today. The active armies of these six nations alone are about 1,500,000 smaller than at the beginning of the war. But about 600,000 more men are serving under the flag of Spain, Portugal, Serbia, Greece, Switzerland, Belgium, Rumania and Denmark at this moment than in 1913.

France the size of whose army is a matter of much conjecture today had as a matter of fact, only 15,000 more men in active service at the beginning of this year than she had when Germany invaded her in 1913. The active army of France on December 31, 1922, was 750,000 men, and her ex-trained reserve on that day totaled 4,440,000 men. On this basis the total military man power of France, without taking into consideration unorganized reserves, was 5,170,000 in a population of only 39,200,700, compared with a German population of 49,940,000.

In any reference to the French military organization it should be pointed out that these totals do not include the splendidly organized and trained colonial forces which performed such great service in the war and which today, better organized than ever before, are still at the call of the mother country. Likewise the British total of 365,000 active does not begin to represent the measure of the British strength.

Europe's Armies of Today. The following table, based on the most dependable information obtainable in Washington, shows at a glance the European active man power situation in 1913 and in 1922:

Country	1913	1922
Great Britain	365,000	365,000
France	750,000	750,000

In the table the active army of 105,000 credited to Great Britain for 1922 embraces only British troops in the United Kingdom and does not include any of the British troops in India nor the colonial, Dominion, native Indian or Egyptian units. No figures showing separate strength for Montenegro for 1922 are given because that nation, independent in 1913, has been merged with Serbia into the new Yugoslav nation. Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Latvia and Poland did not exist as separate nations in 1913, but as a result of the war have been carved out of Russia, Germany and Austria, and now maintain armies of their own.

War Cut Gaps in Armies. Fourteen European nations now require compulsory military service. These are Belgium, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, Italy, Yugoslavia, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland.

Although the World War cut great gaps in the military man power of Europe, it did not by any means wreck it in the extent generally assumed. In proof of this the following table as of December, 1922, tells the story at a glance:

Country	Total	Man Power in 1922

Overheard by J. C. Lawyer—Yes, I'm off to Florida for a couple of weeks. Health precaution. Think it best to recharge my storage batteries before they become completely exhausted.

Blind Friend—That's all I thought you were running on gas.

Didn't Believe in It. Wife—Look, dear, I picked up this horseshoe today. We're in for some luck.

Husband—Nothing to it! A horseshoe's very strange shows how stupid it is to connect it with luck—it can't make both ends meet.
